TWO PROVINCES TO DECLARE FREEDOMMONGOLIA AND TURKESTAN LAT.
EST CHINESE PROVINCES IN REBELLION.ARE PLAYING FAIRRussia Has Agreed Not To Take Advantage of Situation in the Orient At All.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Peking, Dec. 28.—M. Frodin, Russian chargé d'affaires, went to the Chinese foreign office today and handed in the request on behalf of the Russian government, that China should promptly reassume control of Mongolia. He received the response that China was, at the moment, unable to comply.

See Plot.

The action of the Russian government was taken in consequence of the proclamation of independence by Mongolia and the report that the dependency of Turkestan would be cut off from China at the same moment.

Leaves Way Open.

The inability of China to assert her authority in Mongolia at the present moment leaves the way open, according to prevalent opinion here, for the extension of Russian influence in that dependency and also the possibility of ultimate annexation.

No Official Word.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Although not officially informed of the purpose of the local authorities in Mongolia and Turkestan to declare the independence of those provinces of China today, the officials of the state department were not surprised at the press reports to that effect.

Denies Report.

St. Petersburg, Russia, Dec. 28.—The Russian foreign office denies the report that Russian troops have entered Mongolia. A squadron of Cosacks were sent recently to the newly established capital at Kholo, and this movement evidently gave rise to the report that a Russian army was entering Mongolia.

Few Provinces.

Attention was directed to the fact,
that, with the exception of Chih Li, practically all of the Chinese provinces, save Mongolia and Turkestan, already have declared their independence of the Peking government.

Ideal Republic.

This was done condescendingly for the purpose of getting rid of monarchical machinery which had existed in the provinces for the last three hundred years, and of clearing the way for the realization of the ideal republic of the Chinese reformers.

Extend Influence.

As to the possibility of the extension of Russian influence over the provinces of Mongolia and Turkestan, and their probable ultimate absorption by Russia, nothing is known here.

Has Agreed.

Every step taken, however, has warranted the confidence of the state department in the pledges given by the two powers interested, that they would act as a unit in China and would seek to take no individual advantage of any developments such as the declaration of independence of the provinces at this stage.

Peking, China, 6:17 P. M.—The throne has agreed to Premier Yuan Shi Kai's suggestion to refer the question of the future government of China to a national conference and to abide by its decision whatever it may be.

Scheme Is Debated.

The Dowager Empress, Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the Manchu princes of the imperial khan debated throughout the entire morning the scheme for the convention of delegates from all parts of the empire which shall in the future exist in China.

Urged Acceptance.

Prince Ching, former premier and minister of affairs urged acceptance of the proposal while Prince Lu Sang, member of the council and Prince Tsai Pao, former minister of war and brother of the present regent on the other hand strenuously opposed the scheme.

Decision Reached.

The number of Manchu princes present who were in favor of the acceptance of the proposition finally prevailed and the decision was reached to leave the settlement of the new form of government in the hands of the delegates selected by the people.

Traffic Quiet.

Hong Kong, China, Dec. 28.—Traffic along the West river is generally quiet but occasionally pirates occur.
The British steamer Szayap from Hong Kong to Canton was attacked and looted by sixty pirates who succeeded in carrying off cash and munition and plunder to the total value of $20,000. The crew was unarmed and unable to oppose any resistance. None of them were harmed, To Leave Peaking.London, Dec. 28.—A telegram to the telegraph company here said that the imperial family had decided to leave Peking. The decision will be announced at 3 o'clock this afternoon.REAR END SMASH AT MILWAUKEE LIMITS

Milwaukee, Dec. 28.—Engineer William Gregg, aged twenty years, was injured and several hundred passengers on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad passenger train number 2, were badly shaken up at six-thirty o'clock this morning when a light-dressed engine crashed into the rear of the passenger train at the foot of Thirtieth street. Several passengers in the sleeper were thrown to the floor of the car and bruised, but none was seriously injured. Engineer Gregg was at the throttle of the dislodged engine. He was removed to the Milwaukee hospital with a badly bruised leg. The cause of the accident is said to have been a defective switch. None of the cars were thrown from the tracks.

POULTRY COMPANIES ARE INCORPORATINGLarge Number of Local Associations
Are Taking Out Papers In Order To Receive State Aid.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)Madison, Wis., Dec. 28.—In the expectation of taking advantage of a new law granting state aid to poultry shows, numerous local poultry associations in Wisconsin are incorporating in the office of the secretary of state.
If they hoped to receive the allotment
this winter they are doomed to disappointment, for the statute (chapter 143, laws of 1911) provides that each poultry association must have held at least one annual exhibition after incorporation to entitle it to the bounty. Consequently those associations now incorporating must wait another year before receiving the state aid. At least twenty such associations are now incorporated.
Only $1,200 is appropriated to make such payment, pro rata, among these associations, and at the present rate of incorporation of poultry associations the bounty for each is likely to be reduced to the proverbial thirty cents.
Two hundred dollars is the highest amount payable from the state to any association in any one year.The dispute spread today to the county of Cheshire. The mills at Marlboro, owned by the calico printers company, locked out their hands this morning, and similar action is expected in other Cheshire centers.The Cotton Waste Spinners federation received today to close the mills belonging to its members and on Jan.
1, if the dispute between the employers and workers in Lancashire is not settled in the interim.Appeal to Askwith.
The next move appears to lie with Sir George Askwith of the board of trade, who has acted successfully in so many labor disputes.CHICAGO PROFESSOR

Must Rush Reports.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 28.—M. Syverson of Tomah has called a meeting of the Association of Wisconsin Fairs to be held in Milwaukee in January at which time dates for next year's fairs will be fixed and other business transacted. The annual allotments of state aid to fairs will be made by the secretary of state in February. So far, less than twenty of the reports on premiums paid have been sent in, and the secretary of state urges that this be done at once.MONGOLIAN PRIEST

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28.—Gov. Dick has asked for the immediate resignation of Dr. Alvah Doty as health officer of the port of New York, a post he has held since 1895. Dr. Doty's term expired last January. His removal was recommended recently by Chas. N. Bulger, the commissioner appointed by the governor to investigate the management and affairs of the office. The salary of the health officer is $12,500 a year.KANSAS WILL HAVE A NEW STATE BASEBALL LEAGUE.Will be Principally Made up of Towns
Which Were in Central Kansas here today plans were discussed for the formation of a new baseball league to be made up chiefly of towns in the Central Kansas league circuit last season, with others from the old Kansas State League. An eight-club organization is proposed. Among the cities proposed for membership are Newton, Hutchinson, Emporia, Salina, Great Bend, McPherson, Junction City, Man-

publics With Bogus Coin

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Dec. 28.—A scheme for swamping several Central American Republics with counterfeit money has been discovered according to a manuscript received here. It is reported that $10,000,000 had actually been put into circulation in Nebraska. A like sum it is said has been sold. Two cabinet ministers are accused of being interested in the scheme.FIVE YEAR OLD BOY

IS ASPECT NOW OF GREAT COTTON WARMore English Mills Are Closed And Indications Point to Continued Struggle.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Manchester, England, Dec. 28.—Both sides in the great cotton war are determined to fight to a finish. The mills in a score of towns in the north and northeast districts of the county of Lancashire are at a stand still. In a few instances the fires are kept going, but these are still hopeful of an early resumption of work.

OTHER MILLS CLOSE.

The dispute spread today to the county of Cheshire. The mills at

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Dec. 28.—Once a year the chosen representatives of the leading colleges and universities of the country, comprising the organization known as the National Collegiate Athletic Association, get together to agree on uniform rules and to discuss other matters tending to keep athletic sports at American colleges on a high plane and free from taint. Today, at the Hotel Astor, the association began its sixth annual meeting with an attendance of delegates from nearly four-score of the prominent educational institutions of the country.The morning session was made unable by the presentation of addresses by several eminent men invited to address the association. The speakers and their topics included the following:"The Military Value of Athletics to a Nation," Major General Leonard

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Having learned there is a railway employee, who was a friend of Violet Buehler, missing since Nov. 25, who disappeared simultaneously with the girl, Inspector Hunt detailed officers today to investigate the report.The police are also trying to find Charles Lewis, a former roomer of the hotel operated by the girl's mother, and with whom they say Violet corresponded. Inspector Hunt says he was handicapped in the search because the girl's mother withheld in-

Corrosion in metals is said to be prevented by the passage through the metals of a weak current of electricity. This is a "like cure like" treatment for the pitting of the metals is said to be due to the local electrical action, that is, feeble current developed by the peculiarities in the metal itself, at the point of corrosion.

NUMBER OF POULTRY EXHIBITS PROMISES TO BREAK RECORDS

Demand For Premium List of Southern Wisconsin Association
Threatens To Exhaust Supply

That the number of exhibits at the approaching annual show of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association will exceed in number those of any previous show is indicated by the heavy demand for the premium lists, now being distributed. At the ratio they are now being called for by poultry fanciers not only in Wisconsin, but in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, and Michigan, the supply will not meet the demand. This is in definite assurance that the big show has been heard of a long ways from home, and that poultry fanciers dealing in very high class stock are beginning to realize that a ribbon of any color from the Janesville show is worth going after. Its phenomenal success for the last three years has convinced the public that it is managed on a liberal though conservative basis. Its personality is such that while it is making many friends it has no favorites and every exhibit must stand or fall according to its merits.

Probably no association of its size in the state has ever offered more or larger premiums than the Southern Wisconsin Association. They are so attractive that they draw exhibits from a greater distance than any other, unless it be the Milwaukee Association, and this year the attractions will be greater than ever before. Fred Green, manager will gladly furnish any information that is desired concerning the show.

The business men of the city have taken a great deal of interest in the exhibition, to be held from the fifteenth to the twentieth of this month, and this is manifested by their liberal contribution of special premiums. Those who have given premiums are: Shelly Grocery company, Parker Pen company, Pond & Bailey, Roofing Bros., Frank D. Kimball, Baumberger & Seefeld, Frank Baldwin, Janesville Candy Kitchen, O. D. MRS. WILLIAM SCHRUB
OF EGERTON SURPRISED BY FRIENDS LAST NIGHT.

Members of Ladies Aid Society of German Church Give Party In Her Honor—Other News.

Egerton, Dec. 28.—The German Ladies' Aid Society last night tendered their sister member, Mrs. William Schrub, a most pleasant surprise, the occasion being her forty-first birthday. The pleasant home of the surprised hostess on Front street was thrown open to about forty guests and the event opened with a four course luncheon at 4:30 o'clock. Music and games occupied the evening's pastime and the guests before departing presented the fair-hostess with a set of elegant silver fruit knives. Mrs. Schrub has long been an honored and influential member of the society and at present is the treasurer of the order.

Edgerton News Notes.

Joseph J. Leary was a stout guest yesterday afternoon on business.

John Pearson and W. T. Pomroy were called to Janesville a day or two ago on account of the serious illness of William T. Pomroy, residing on Pleasant street.

Henry Thronson of this city on Tuesday sold his farm of 160 acres situated in Fulton township, to Richard Norton for the sum of $17,000. The farm is better known as the old John Heck place. Mr. Thronson bought the farm one year ago at a reasonable price and erected a new house, new barn and other out buildings on the premises, hence the value increased very materially.

MANY THOUSAND TONS YET TO BE RECEIVED AT LOCAL FACTORY

Run of Beets Will Continue Until Last of February Is Present

Outlook.

These are busy days down at the Rock County Sugar Company's factory and the work of slicing the beets and manufacturing sugar will continue until the latter part of February, giving the local factory the longest run since it was built. Some thirty thousand tons of beets which are now stored in huge pits at receiving stations have yet to be received at the factory. Some fifty-five thousand tons have already been stored in the big bins here and the greater portion will be made into sugar. General Manager M. R. Osburn stated yesterday that the run of the factory would continue until the last of February.

The beets have nearly all been received from the farmers and are stored in huge pits to prevent their freezing and spoiling. These will be shipped in as fast as needed and there is room to handle them at the factory. The Mononaue Sugar Company, at Mononaue, Michigan, finished its run and closed its factory Christmas day. The Rock county company had under contract between six and seven thousand averaged fifteen tons to an acre making the run the largest in its history. Thus far no contracts have been made for beets for 1912 but the campaign will start shortly after now.

STARTS ROUGH-HOUSE; GIVEN A JAIL TERM

Hugh Waggoner Got Worst of Bar
Room Encounter As Well. Hit
Over Head With Chair.

Injury last night and insult this morning is the grievance of Hugh Waggoner, who not only got the worst of a bar-room encounter but was sentenced to five days imprisonment in the county jail, to which ten days more will be added if he does not pay a fine of five dollars and costs.

Waggoner became belligerent and domineering under the influence of ardent spirits last evening, and when the waiter in Norman Ballantine's restaurant on South river Street refused to give him lunch without being paid for it he picked up a chair and whirled it about in a menacing manner. But there was another man in the cafe who was quicker and more clever in the chair juggling act than the waiter and hit him a hard blow. In the head with one. Before Waggoner could seize the bloody marks of the fray from his head and face, officers Slim Dorn and George Craft arrived and brought him to the police station. Dr. Farneworth was called to sew up his broken scalp. When arraigned this morning he had no excuse to make other than the man who hit him was "fitter" than he was, and that he did not provoke his action. Waggoner started another brawl a few days ago but escaped prosecution.

Some years ago he gained considerable notoriety by escaping the custody of the sheriff who was taking him to the industrial school at Waupaca and returning to Janesville, where he had been captured for some time. Hugh Brockman was taken in tow by one of the night policemen last night and probably saved from freezing to death for he refused to obey his sister's directions to stay home and was in such a condition as to be unable to care for his safety. He plead guilty to being intoxicated and was given a ten day sentence the Judge refusing his request to change it to a fine.

TO RAISE MONUMENT TO INDIAN CHIEF ON SKAVLEM FARM

H. L. Skavlem President of Memorial Society That Will Raise Shaft to Chief White Crow.

Several members of the Wisconsin Archaeological Society and others interested in the Indian history of the Lake Koshkonong region, have formed a memorial society with H. L. Skavlem of this city as president, for the purpose of erecting a monument to Chief White Crow, leader of the famous band of Winnebagoes who bore his name.

It planned to locate the memorial shaft on the site of White Crow's village at Carencro Point, Lake Koshkonong, which is on the farm owned by Mr. Skavlem. It was at this village site that Mr. Skavlem made his research during the past autumn and made the discovery of the hammer in which the American Indians made their stone implements.

On a part of the village site is an immense boulder or hard-head which has been suggested as appropriate for the monument which would be inscribed with a bronze tablet. The details of the dedication will be arranged later but it is planned to hold the ceremonies sometime during the coming summer and a large gathering of archaeologists will be present. Chas. E. Brown of Madison is acting secretary and treasurer of the memorial society.

A Prominent Chief.

White Crow was a prominent civil chief and orator of his tribe and an early friend of the whites. He was a signer of the treaties of Doty and Minto in 1827, Green Bay in 1828 and Rock Island in 1832. He was one of the party of Winnebagoes who accompanied Major Forsyth and Indian Agent John H. Kinzie to Washington in 1828. During the stirring time of the Black Hawk war in 1832 he served as a guide to General Henry Dodge's command of Winnebago militia. He was sent to the camp of Black Hawk to secure the freedom of the Hall girls who had been taken prisoners at the slaughter at the Davis farm near Ottawa, Ill., a mission he successfully accomplished. The prisoners were returned to the whites at the fort at Blue Mounds. White Crow was a friend to the whites in a day when the Winnebagoes held the key to their more or less desperate situation. It will be remembered that there were in this year nearly 5,000 Winnebagoes in Winnebago and an uprising of their chiefs in favor of Black Hawk might have led to the extermination of the handful of white settlers then in the state.

White Crow is said to have been about fifty years at the time of the Black Hawk war. He died in 1834 and is said to have been buried where the village of Cross Plains is now located. His daughter is reported to have been an Indian girl of great beauty. She became the wife of the Winnebago chief Yellow Thunder and is known in history as "the Washington woman."

In 1910 the Sauk County Historical Society erected a monument near Baraboo to the memory of Yellow Thunder and the Manitowoc Historical Society, a similar monument to Old Mexico at Manitowoc Rapids. A start in the right direction has thus been made.

LIFE LONG RESIDENT OF COUNTY IS DEAD

Manley C. Fish Who Resides Near Leyden, Passed Away Last Evening
After Week's Illness.

Manley C. Fish, a life long resident of Rock county, passed away last night at seven o'clock at his home in the town of Center, near Leyden. Death came following a serious illness of a week's duration, although he had been in poor health for number of months.

Had Mr. Fish lived until January 5th he would have been seventy years old. All his life he has spent on the old homestead in the town of Center, where his father, John Fish, settled at an early date. During his life time Mr. Fish had been an industrious and hard working man. For many years he had owned a threshing outfit and had assisted in its operation, even in recent years when he was over seventy years of age.

He was a man esteemed for his integrity and kindly manner and enjoyed the acquaintance of a large circle of friends. He never married but had lived with his mother until her death and his half-brother on the farm west of Leyden. His half-brother, Esth, is the only near relative living, E. T. of this city being his cousin.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow noon at the chapel at Oak Hill cemetery.

Richard Barber.

Richard Barber, for many years a resident of the city of Janesville, passed away at the county hospital at six o'clock this morning after an extended illness with consumption. He was sixty-four years of age and came to this country from Ireland when a young man. He was well known in the city and had been employed by the city on the streets and at other work for many years. Falling health made necessary his residence at the county farm where he went a year ago. He leaves one sister who resides at Waukesha. The funeral services will be held at the county house.

Thomas C. Bierkens.

The body of the late Thomas C. Bierkens, who died Tuesday evening as the result of the accidental fracture of the skull, was taken to his farm home near Orfordville last night, leaving here over the North-Western railway. Funeral services will be held there tomorrow, and interment will be made in the Lathrop cemetery in the town of Newark.

Makes Some Difference.

A nourishing supper, a good night's sleep and a fine morning have often made a hero of the same man who, by indigestion, a restless night and a rainy morning, would have proved a coward—Chesterfield.

FIRST SKI TOURNEY OF YEAR ON MONDAY

Stoughton Ski Club In Meeting Last Night Plan Big Event For Monday—$200 In Prizes.

Stoughton, Wis., Dec. 28.—The Stoughton Ski Club last night decided to hold the first big ski tournament of the year on Jan. 1, and to offer over $200 in special prizes for the best jumps made. Telegrams were sent out on Wednesday night to forty of the best ski performers in the northwest requesting their entry for the meet next Monday.

Great improvements have been made during the early autumn by the Stoughton ski club on its new hill which was tried out only once last year. The under run or landing hill has been made stronger and longer so that when jumps of 135 feet were made, 150 foot leaps will take place.

The grandstands have been enlarged and have been erected immediately adjoining the landing hill so that spectators can be within twenty feet of the skier when he lands. A wide stairway leads from the top of the landing hill to the grandstands, which alone seat over 1,000 people. Trees and shrubbery have been removed from the western portion of the oval below the hill so that additional room for two thousand spectators has been created. The 25-foot long chute has been boarded in on both sides to prevent wind from blowing the snow off the incline. The entire grandstands have been boarded in so that spectators will be more protected from the cold.

Special runs will be run from Madison, Beloit and Milwaukee to accommodate ski enthusiasts. Stoughton has the world's largest artificial ski truss.

EXPECT FAST GAME WITH MILTON TEAM

Quintet Which Held Evansville to 31 to 31 Tied, Will Play Y. M. C. A. Five Here Tonight.

Tonight at the Y. M. C. auditorium the Milton town basketball team will play the first local game and following that game there will be a contest between the second Senior and intermediate teams. The prospect of this game has kept the first team working hard all week as they expect as hard a struggle as they had with Evansville. Milton having held them to a tie, 31 to 31, in a game at Evansville a little while ago.

Signal practice and team work have been the most important items on the program of the Junesville boys during the week and lively practice scrimmages have given them plenty of chance to keep in good trim during holiday time.

Tonight's game will be played by Kopp and Mott as guards, Brown as center and Wilson and Shuler as forwards. Brown has not played with the Y. M. C. A. yet and has only practiced with them for a short time but the boys are all in good condition. The Milton team is also in good fighting trim and plan to at least give the locals a hard fight for their money.

THEATER

HOWE'S TRAVEL FESTIVAL.

The pomp and pageantry of the Coronation of George V. will be reproduced on an elaborate scale by Lynne H. Howe at the Myers Theatre Friday and Saturday, Dec. 29 and 30, with Saturday matinee. Mr. Howe's scenes are exclusive. The awe-inspiring display of militarism, of ecclesiastical solemnity and medieval magnificence, will be presented in all its varied phases yet without the discomfort experienced by spectators in the immovable mass of humanity that packed the streets of London.

The Royal family and relatives, foreign princes, princesses and special representatives from every civilized country on the globe are depicted in all the gorgeous splendor of their distinctive robes, uniforms, dress and accoutrements. Peers and peersesses, bishops, to whom officers in weird uniforms, eastern potentates, in glowing robes, may all be seen again in dazzling review.

Two other features of paramount importance are promised by Mr. Howe. One is the strict exclusiveness of many of the scenes which are photographed by his own staff of photographers, such as an aeroplane ride with Lincoln Beachey, another by rail through the Royal Gorge, Colorado, etc. Equally interesting is the assurance that many subjects, such as the pictorial excursion to the heart of Old Japan—Nara, Nikko, the river Magdalen, and trip across the mountain fastnesses of New Zealand, are reproduced in all the wealth of Nature's own glorious colors. These scenes reveal entirely new and limitless possibilities of Mr. Howe's excellence along incident lines. His play is far superior to many of the late domestic comedies, so playgoers say, while the supporting company comprises people well known in the cities for their unusual ability, as well as their dramatic worth. An evening's enjoyment is thus assured to theatre patrons and a liberal scale of prices will enable all to attend. Mr. Whininger is not a preacher, but he has wisely remarked: "The actors' duty toward art demands that we encourage everything in stage work that is worthy, as well as condemn its bad qualities. My efforts will always strive for clean plays."

COMBINATION SWEATER

In Two Parts and Can Be Used Also as Scarf or Shawl.

A combined coat, shawl and sweater has been devised by a New York firm, so that for the price of one garment the owner can have three—if they can all properly be called garments. The article is sleeveless and is of knitted material and in two parts. One part consists of a wide girdle that fits around the waist to a point just below the bust. The other part consists of a portion that extends down the back to meet the top of the girdle and has

Hooks Hold Parts Together.

Two loops that come over the shoulders to meet the girdle in front. Along the upper edge of the girdle and the lower edges of the scarf are strips of other material to which hooks and eyes are sewed so that the whole hooks up to provide a close garment. The lower edges of the scarf are equipped likewise to close the latter across the chest, either when it is used as a sweater or a scarf. When used as a shawl it can remain open.

Winter Travel

Several pieces of new literature have come to the Gazette Travel Bureau regarding California which are handsomely printed and full of information. They are delightful to look over and to those who contemplate travel during the winter months, we would suggest their securing a copy of these various booklets.

The South and Southwest are also covered by literature; the points of interest being touched upon and illustrated in the various booklets that have been sent to this bureau.

These are all free to the public and you are invited to come and get them.

Current folders of almost every railway and transportation line are here for you and the official Railway Guide, giving detailed information about connections and time is at your disposal.

SMASH UP NEAR AFTON

Trains Not Damaged Seriously But Traffic is Blocked for Some Time —Relief Trains Sent.

An engineer's mistake in starting without his conductor is given as the cause for what might have been a serious wreck this morning at 3:15 on the Northwestern road about two miles and a half this side of Afton when the regular freight, No. 319, was struck by a special from this city.

Both crews were slow in jumping, thinking that the other was on the St. Paul track which runs parallel to theirs at this point, but with the exception of the special's firemen all got off several seconds before the crash came and he was soon to leap from the cab window just before they met.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hemingway are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Woods of Monroe.

Miss Nellie Franklin and daughter, Gladys, have been the guests for a few days of the former's sister, Mrs. Thornton Read at La Prairie.

Miss Jessie Shawson is home after spending five months in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Randolph of Milton Junction, who have been visiting in the city for a few days have returned home.

Mrs. Lydia Kinney, to spend a week at Ashtabula, the Myers in Janesville and the Portage, at Portage, Mrs. McNeil has become one of the leading hotel proprietors in the state.

The Portage will be managed by Charles S. Pierce, Mrs. McNeil's brother-in-law, and possession is to take place on January first. It is a modern, up-to-date structure with fifty rooms, six being equipped with baths. It is now fully furnished throughout with brass beds and box springs and has a most complete electric lighting system.

It is located near a handsome little city park and directly opposite the terminal of the Portage-Madison Interurban, the line that is now under construction and expects to extend its line to Janesville in the near future.

Portage is a railroad center for the St. Paul and Wisconsin Central roads and one of the best local hotel cities among the smaller places in the state.

Mr. Pierce and his wife, formerly Miss Donnelly, will be located in the opening of the Myers.

In speaking of the venture Mrs. McNeil said this morning, "I have but two years more for my lease on the Myers' home and as yet have been unable to make any suitable arrangements for renewing it.

In closing the deal for the Portage it would not be without good hotel to fall back upon should I not renew my lease here. I also have negotiations pending for hotel properties in two other cities which, if I close, will give me two hotels including the Myers' in the state."

Mr. and Mrs. Pierce left this morning for Milwaukee to assume charge and hold an impromptu reception at the depot where many friends assembled to wish them success in their new venture.

CLERK'S REPORT SENT TO STATE TAX COMMISSION

Report of County Taxes and Indebtedness Sent to Commission for First Time.

For the first time after the passage of the new law, the county clerk has sent his report of the taxes and indebtedness for the various assessment districts of Rock county to the state tax commission instead of the secretary of state as has been the rule in former years. The assessment report, however, goes to the secretary of state, as formerly.

Which Was the Disagreeable Lady?

A LINE of people were slowly moving forward to get tickets at a train station window. A woman came leisurely through the station door, walked to the head of the line, and asked for a ticket. The woman whose turn it was to be waited on, said curtly:

"Madam, it is my turn to get a ticket. You should take your place at the end of the line."

The newcomer glared at her. "The hell!" she said. "I guess I'll do as I please."

"Not in this case," replied the other pleasantly. "There are certain rights of the public you will have to respect. Every one in this line has been patiently waiting his turn. You have no right to come in at the last moment and proceed all 'or us."

Some of the line looked approval of the woman's stand. The mat behind her glanced nervously at the clock and growled, "Oh, get your ticket and get out." The ticket agent looked apprehensive, not wishing to side with either.

"You mind your business," went on the newcomer, "and I'll mind mine."

"I am minding my business," replied the woman smilingly. "It is my business, not to be imposed upon. I have spent ten minutes here waiting to get my ticket. I do not propose to be bluffed out of several minutes more, by somebody with assurance, but no sense of justice. Your place is at the end of the line, and the longer you put off going there, the farther down you'll be." She picked up her ticket and changed which the agent poked under the little brass railing, and went her way. The nervous mat behind her quickly asked for his ticket, and the line closed in tightly. The intruder glanced belligerently at the row of sympathetic faces, and seeing no chance for special privilege, bounced off, saying, "I'll get my ticket on the train."

As she passed through the train gate, she caught a glimpse of the woman who had prevented her raid upon the time and rights of herself and those back of her.

"There goes that disagreeable woman," she remarked to her companion. "Did you ever hear of anything so mean in your life? It wouldn't have taken a minute for me to get my ticket. Some people can be terribly disagreeable for anything."

"I'm not sure," said a man who heard her and who had been in the line, "just which is the disagreeable woman in this case. I think opinion may differ on the subject."

The woman glared at him, and remarked again to her companion: "Everybody seems cranky today."

But her companion, with a thoughtful look upon her face, was gazing after the woman who had defended her rights, and refused to be drawn into the controversy.

The Evening Chit-Chat.

BY RUTH CAMERON

THREE was nothing in the least business-like, official or stenographic about her manner—if her head bulged with facts—about the treatment of the deficient classes, no hint of that appeared in her talk at parties. Few of the young men she danced with thought her clever, and this shows how clever she really was. For there are men in this world who will run ten city blocks in any weather to avoid talking to a woman who knows more than they do, and knows it, and shows that she knows it—Henry Snyder Harrison.

I once heard a very clever girl say bitterly, "Men don't want a girl to have any brains. The more of a fool a girl is, the better they like her."

Now this girl is a person who is extremely clever, and extremely and eternally conscious of the fact. She is of the type that Mr. Harrison describes as knowing more than men do, and knowing it, shows that she knows that she knows it.

And from her bitterness, it is very evident that she has had the experience with men, which Mr. Harrison prophesied for the girl of this type.

Nevertheless, I think she was decidedly unfair in her deduction that men never like a clever girl, but prefer a fool. Given a pretty girl with brains, and another equally pretty without, after the same man, and it's the girl with brains who will win out nine times out of ten. It isn't the cleverness that men object to. It's the display of and consciousness of that cleverness that they don't like.

And it isn't just men who object to that—it's everybody. People who know a great deal, and know it in such a disagreeable manner that they make other people feel uncomfortable and ignorant, are always at a discount.

It isn't the amount of knowledge, but the manner of it, that offends.

One man may know a great deal, and know it in such a humble unobtrusive manner that he never grates on anyone. Another may not know half so much, and yet be so blatant and obtrusive about his little stock of knowledge, that he makes himself distinctly unpopular by it.

I once went to walk with a man who knew a great deal about botany, and rubbed it into me at every stop. He spoke of the trees and flowers by their technical Latin names, and seemed duly surprised when I did not recognize them, and he even called the salt bay "sodous maritimus." I assure you I did not care to repeat that walk.

Maybe it's an unworthy characteristic of human nature to object to having one's ignorance in any direction constantly and forcibly thrust upon one, but it is certainly a universal trait, and anyone who wants to be popular had better take it into account.

Besides, this blatant, self-conscious, always-calling-attention to itself variety of knowledge is nothing more nor less than foolishness.

Anyone who continually injects samples of his own superior wisdom into the conversation, thus making it unintelligent and uninteresting to others, is just an educated variety of common pork.

Don't be so bitter because your cleverness is unappreciated by others.

Try appreciating and displaying this wonderful cleverness a little less yourself, and see if other people do not come to have a greater regard for it and you.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Need of Skillful Cookery and Cheap Foods. Small Economics.

By Alice E. Whittaker.

One of the greatest needs at present is popularly believed to be cheaper food for people who cannot afford the high prices now paid for table supplies. The less expensive article must be wholesome and satisfactory to the taste. Many experiments are now being made to find something that will fill this want and be sold for what it is and not fraudulently.

This effort in behalf of the small wage earner is well directed but why not teach how to cook the less costly food staples properly? I know a family once whose only wage earner was without work from fall until late spring. During this time their sole food was little but what was made from corn meal and when the season of privation was over both the parents and children were healthy and well. The wife knew how to cook the meal so that it would be digestible and also in sufficient variety to prevent cloying the appetite even if it was exceptionally keen.

In households of all conditions An observing grocer once told me that he could easily tell when one of his regular patrons was without a regular cook as the bills for food would invariably drop one-third. This decrease was due in a great degree to more care in preventing waste. A woman who will take the trouble to go into her kitchen in search of looks will be sure to find them; it is not always intentional wastefulness but simply lack of interest.

Sometimes awe of the kitchen will keep a housewife from economical management. Again other looks come through her inability to detect that pieces of bread, remnants of canned fruit or cooked vegetables, good bacon fat and portions of stale flour or bread, be saved rather than haphazardly thrown into the garbage can. Watching this receptacle seems to some women to be the last degree of miserliness, however it pays.

AIDS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

When keeping bread warm to rise in winter, a slate stone made warm on which to set the pan will hasten the process.

Now that eggs are so scarce, an eggless cake will be welcome.

Coconut Fruitcake.—Take two cups of brown sugar, one cup of molasses, a pint of boiling coffee, a pound of fat salt pork chopped fine, a tablespoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cloves, allspice, ginger and a pound of currants, a half pound of shredded orange peel, lemon and citron, and a half pound of chopped nut meats. Over this pour the hot coffee and molasses and soda. Add flour to make stiff. Bake slowly two hours.

When roasting meat, parboil a few small, juicy turnips until nearly tender, then lay them in with the meat, and baste occasionally until well done.

Never try to boil when using the oven, as opening the stove will cool the oven. Parboiling in a hot frying pan will do when the better way is not available.

A fine cake-mixer when one is making enough to go to the baker, is a small ice cream freezer can. Put in the ingredients and beat with the paddle by turning the crank.

German Mash.—Cook a ham or beef bone until the meat falls off. Salt the water and stir in oat meal, cook until well done, then turn out into greased pans to mold. Slice and fry.

To preserve brooms, dip them for three minutes in a pail of boiling soap suds every week. This cleanses them, makes them more tough and pliable and they will wear longer.

A delicious accompaniment to fried chicken is fried mush. Fry the mush before it gets cold. It will be crispier and sweater than if it were molded before it is fried.

WRAPPING OF BREAD BENEFICIAL

The Kansas state board of health has decided after investigation that the wrapping of bread immediately on baking is beneficial, both from the sanitary point of view and because it keeps longer in edible condition. There was at one time a law in London providing that bread should not be sold by bakers within 24 hours after it was baked. Hot bread, which cannot be thoroughly masticated, is always inferior to that which has been kept longer and requires more chewing. It is a good plan to cut bread in small squares and allow it to dry, especially for children, who need to be taught to eat slowly:

MATCHES.

BULLETIN 86, published by the U. S. Government Bureau of Labor, summarizing the investigation of one single factory, says that the record of forty cases of phosphorus poisoning was secured, several of whom died, while many of the victims, including at least fifteen who lost jaws by operations, have existed for years with terrible deformities and some other conditions that would make the grave appear a fortunate refuge.

President Taft recommended in his message to the first Congress legislation to stamp out this terrible scourge of the match industry. A bill was introduced. Objection was made that one company had the monopoly of the right to use the formula for the manufacturing in this country of non-phosphorus matches. The Diamond Match Company canceled this troublesome patent, ending this bugaboo, and several companies have demonstrated the success of non-phosphorus matches.

And yet John H. Andrews, Secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation, says investigations during the last few weeks prove that even in the most sanitary of modern match establishments the loathsome "phosphorus jaw" continues to cause terrible suffering. There have been several horrible deaths during the past few months. The factories continue to use the deadly poison, because it is a little cheaper than the harmless substitutes.

Efforts at regulation to mitigate the evil have failed abroad and in this country. The only preventive is to prohibit the use of phosphorus in the making of matches. This is the course pursued by practically all the civilized countries of the world except the United States.

Are we a sovereign people or are we slaves of money greed? Write your representatives and Senators in Congress, demanding early enactment of the Each Phosphorus Bill. Send them resolutions and petitions. Your letters need not be long nor formal. Just say you are earnestly and anxiously watching the progress of this bill.

The tailored waist is not pause, by any means. And so long as the tastes of practical women prevail probably never will be. The one here shown is from an exorbitant waist maker's who also designs various nobly nobby effects in men's haberdashery.

The material was a silk and linen fabric in an even shade, with a blue satin quarter inch stripe, divided by hair lines of black.

Four tucks, on either shoulder, brought these stripes closer together.

In solid color effect.

From a stock, with plaited bow of black satin, a flat tie, about an inch and a half wide, extend the full length of the front. Three rounded tabs fastened over the tie with pearl buttons. And the cuffs carried, on the same idea, with a band of black satin three button tabs.

A whole back into the vest, carried out the severely simple effect of this neat shirt waist.

Kissing the Dying.

To kiss the dying was long considered a gift of strength to the kisser, and among the Romans—the nearest of kin was supposed to kiss the expiring—one in order to receive the soul as it escaped the body. To this day the same custom is maintained among the European Jews, and at the death of a czar of Russia.—The Smart Set.

CURIOS BITS OF HISTORY

WILLIAM DOCKWRA AND CHEAP POSTAGE

By A. W. MACY.

Strange as it may seem, before 1830, it was impossible to mail a letter in the city of London without taking it to the general post office, in Lombard street. In that year William Dockwra, a merchant, put into operation a scheme for collecting and delivering letters in any part of London for one penny. He established a number of receiving offices in various parts of the city. The scheme worked very well; so well, in fact, that it provoked great hostility. The porters complained that it interfered with their interests, as it, no doubt, did, and tore down the placards announcing the scheme to the public. Some fanatics even denounced it as a popular plot. But it succeeded so well, that it came, near, paying expenses the first year. Our present-day method of handling mail in large cities is not much, if any, better than that of Dockwra, and in one respect it is not as good, for he guaranteed to reimburse the sender when anything of value was lost while in the care of his employees.

FRECKLES

By Gene Stratton-
Porter

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

"I'll have 'Duncen' get you a ten bushel store box the next time he goes to town," said McLean. "You can put in your spare time filling it with the specimens you pick up until the books come, and then you can study out what you have. I suspect you could find a lot of stuff that I could sell for you. I'll order you a butterfly net and box and show you how scientists plan specimens. But I don't want to hear of you killing any birds. They are protected by heavy fines."

McLean rode away and left Freckles staring about. Then he saw the point and grimed sheepishly. Standing on the trail, he twirled the feather and thought the morning over.

"Well, if life ain't getting to be worth living!" he said wonderingly. "Biggest streak of luck I ever had! Bout time something was coming my way, but I wouldn't ever thought anybody could strike such prospects through just a falling feather."

On Duncan's return from his next trip to town there was a store box loaded on the back of his wagon. He drove to the west entrance of the swamp, set the box on a stump that Freckles had selected in a beautiful and sheltered place and made it secure on its foundation with a tree at its back.

"It seems most a pity to nail into that tree," said Duncan. "I hadn't the time to examine into the grain of it, but it looks as if it might be a rare one. Anyhow, the nailin' willin' hurt it deep, and havin' the case by it will make it safer if it is a gold mine."

"Isn't it an oak?" asked Freckles. "Aye," said Duncan. "It looks like it might be one of them fine-grained golden ones that make such grand furniture."

When the body of the case was secured Duncan made a door out of the lid and fastened it on with hinges. He drove a staple, screwed on a latch and gave Freckles a small padlock, so that he might safely fasten in his treasures. He made a shelf in the top for the books and last of all covered the case with oilcloth.

It was the first time in Freckles' life that any one had ever done that much for his pleasure, and it warmed his heart with pure joy.

"Mr. Duncan," he said, "I don't know why you are being so mighty good to me, but if you have any jobs up at the cabin that I could do for you or Mrs. Duncan hours off the line, I'd be glad to help."

"Freckles," said Duncan, "no he began gathering up his tools, "I canna see that it will hurt yo to be told that ye are doin' every day a thing that pleases the boss as much as anything ye could do. Ye're bein' uncommon faithful, lad, and honest as old Father Time. McLean is trustin' yo, as he would his own flesh and blood."

"Oh, Duncan!" cried the boy. "Are you sure?"

"Why, I know," answered Duncan. "I wadna venture to say oise. In those first days he cautioned me na to tell ye that, but now he wadna care. D'y'e ken, Freckles, that some of the slugs tree ye are guardin' are worth a thousand dollars?"

Freckles looked limp, and his eyes popped. "Ye see," said Duncan, "that's why they may be watched so closely. The other night down at camp some son of Banham was suggestin' ye might be sellin' the boss out to Jack and lettin' him take the trees secretly and nobody wad ever ken till the game gets here."

A wave of scarlet flooded Freckles' face, and he blazed hotly at the insult.

"And the boss," continued Duncan, ignoring Freckles' anger, "he lays back just as cool as cowpeas and says, 'I'll give a thousand dollars to any man that will show me fresh stump when we reach the Limberlost,' says he. Some of the men just snapped him up that they'd find some. So you see how the boss is trustin' ya, etc."

"I am gladder than I can ever express," said Freckles. "And now will

I be walking double time to keep some of them from cutting a tree to get all that money."

"Mother of Moses!" howled Duncan. "Ye can trust the Scotch to bungle things altogether. McLean was only meanin' to show yo all confidence and honor. He's gone and set a high price for some dirty whelp to rule yo. I was just tryin' to show yo how he went toward yo, and I've gone and give yo that worry to bear."

"I am mighty proud of what you have been telling me, Duncan," said Freckles. "I need the warung sure, for with the books coming I might be tempted to neglect my work when don't be watching is needed."

Freckles picked up his club and started down the line, whistling cheerfully. Duncan went straight to the lower camp and, calling McLean aside, repeated the conversation verbatim. "And, no matter what happens now or ever, I'll do whatever it takes to keep yo believe that Freckles hasn't guarded faithful as any man could."

"I don't think anything could shake my faith in the lad," said McLean.

Freckles kept one eye religiously on the line. The other he divided between the path, his friends of the who and a search of the sky for his latest arrivals. Every day since their coming he had seen them, either hanging like small black clouds above the swamp or bobbing over logs and trees with their queer tilting walk. Whenever he could spare time he entered the swamp and tried to make friends with them and they were the tamest of all his unnumbered subjects. They dinked, dodged and ambled about him, over logs and bushes, and not even a near approach would drive them to flight.

This morning Freckles walked straight to his case, unlatched it and set his apparatus and dimmed inside. He took out the birdhook, turned to the section headed "V." Past "every" and "vireo" he went, on down the line until his finger, trembling with eagerness, stopped at "vulture."

"Great black California vulture," he read.

"Humph! This side the Rockies will do for us."

"Common turkey buzzard."

"Well, we ain't hunting common turkeys," McLean said chickens, and what he says goes."

"Black vulture of the south."

"Here we are arrived at once."

Freckles' finger followed the line, and he read scraps aloud.

"Common in the south. Sometimes called Jim Crow. Nearest equivalent to Gullin-Crow. A-tent."

"— the Pharaoh's chickens of European species. Sometimes stray north as far as Virginia and Kentucky."

"And sometimes farther," interpolated Freckles, "cos I got them right here in Indiana so like these pictures I can just see mo big chicken bobbing up to get his ears boxed. Hey?"

"Light blue eggs!"

"Golly, I got to be seeing them!"

"— big as common turkey's, but shaped like a hen's, heavily spotted with chocolate!"

"Caramels, I suppose. And!"

"— in hollow logs or stumps!"

"Oh, haghly! Wasn't I barking up the wrong tree though? Ought to been looking near the ground all this time. Now it's all to do over, and I suspect the sooner I start the sooner I'll be likely to find them."

Freckles ate and drank his last drop of water. He sat resting a little and watching the sky to see if his big chicken was hanging up there. But he came to the earth abruptly, for there were steps coming down the trail that were neither McLean's nor Duncan's, and there never had been others. Freckles' heart leaped hotly. He ran a quick hand over his belt to feel if his revolver and hatchet were there, caught up his cudgel and laid it across his knees, then sat quietly waiting. Was it Black Jack, or some one even worse? Forced to do something to brace his nerves, he puffed his stiffening lips and began whistling a tune he had learned in his clear tenor every year of his life at the home Christmas exercises.

His quick Irish wit roused to the ridiculousness of it and he burst into a laugh that stonked him amazingly.

Through the bushes he caught a glimpse of the oncoming figure. His heart leaped with joy, for it was a man from the gang. Wessner had been his bunk mate the night he came down the corduroy. This was no timber thief. Freckles sprang up and called cheerily, a warm welcome on his lips.

"Well, it's good tellin' if you're glad to see me," said Wessner. "We been hearing down at the camp you were as mighty touchy you didn't allow a man within a rod of the line."

"No more do I," answered Freckles.

"If he's a stranger, but you're from McLean, ain't you?"

"Oh, curse McLean!" said Wessner.

Freckles gripped the cudgel.

cliffs without disturbing in the least the state of their azure bloom, and where the ground rose higher for the floor a row of foxfire that would soon be open.

To the left he had discovered a queer natural arrangement of the trees that grow to giant size and were set in a gradually narrowing space so that a long, open vista stretched away until lost in the dim recesses of the swamp. A little trimmings back of underbrush rolling out of dead logs, leveling of stumps and carpeting of moss, made it easy to understand why Freckles had named this the "cathedral," yet he had never been taught that "the groves were God's first temples."

On either side of the trees that constituted the first arch of this dim vista of the swamp he planted ferns that grow waist high this early in the season, and so skillfully had the work been done that not a frond drooped because of the change. Opposite he cleared a space and made a flowerbed. Every day saw the addition of new specimens.

The line side he left the bushes thick for concealment and entered by a narrow path he and Duncan had cleared in setting up the case. He called this the front door, though he used every precaution to hide it. He built rustic seats between several of the trees, leveled the floor and thickly carpeted it with rank, heavy woolly dog moss. About the case he planted wild columbine, bittersweet and wild grape vines and trained them over it until it was almost covered.

This morning Freckles walked straight to his case, unlatched it and set his apparatus and dimmed inside. He took out the birdhook, turned to the section headed "V." Past "every" and "vireo" he went, on down the line until his finger, trembling with eagerness, stopped at "vulture."

"If he's a stranger, but you're from McLean, ain't you?"

"Oh, curse McLean!" said Wessner.

Freckles gripped the cudgel.

"And are you really saying so?" he inquired with elaborate politeness.

"Yes, I am," said Wessner. "So would every other man of the gang if they wasn't too big cowards to say anything unless maybe that other slabback old Scotchman Duncan. Grindin' the lives out of us! Workin' us like dogs and payin' us starvation wages, while he rolls up his millions and lives like a prince!"

Green lights began to play through the gray of Freckles' eyes.

"Wessner," he said impressively, "you'd make a fine pattern for the father of Ward. Every man on that gang is strong and fit, paid all he earns and treated with the courtesy of a gentleman. As for the boss living like a prince, he shares his with you every day of your lives."

Wessner was not a born diplomat, but he saw he was on the wrong track, and he tried another.

"Freckles old fellow," he said, "if you let me give you a pointer I can put you on to making a cool five hundred without stopping out of your trunks."

Freckles drew back.

"You needn't be afraid of speaking up," he said. "There isn't a soul in the Limberlost save the birds and the beasts unless some of your sort's come along and it's crowding the privilege of the legal Indians."

"None of my friends along," said Wessner. "Nobody know I came but Black Jack mean a friend of mine. If you want to hear some and act with reason he can see you later, but it isn't necessary. We can make all the plans needed. The trick's so dead small and easy."

"Must be if you have the engineering of it," said Freckles. "But he's here with a sigh of relief that they were alone."

Wessner was impervious. "You just bet it is! Why, only think, Freckles, shavin' away at a measly little $30 a month, and here's a chance to clear $500 in a day! You surely won't be the fool to miss it!"

"And how was you proposing for me to stale it?" inquired Freckles. "Or am I just to find it laying in me bath about the line?"

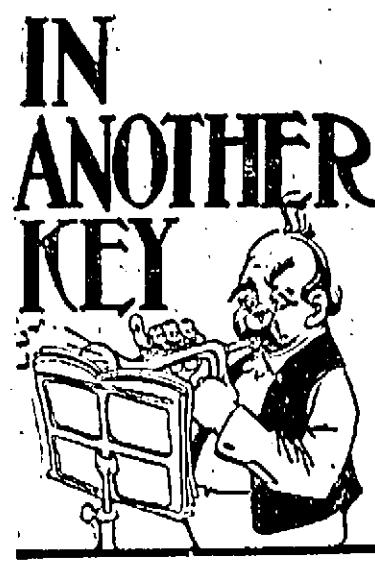

"That's it, Freckles," blustered the Dutchman, "you're just to find it. You needn't know a thing. You name a morning when you will wake up the west side of the swamp and then turn round and walk back down the same road again and the money is yours. Couldn't anything be easier than that, could it?"

"Depends entirely on the man," said Freckles. The lit of lurk hanging above the swale beside them was not sweeter than the sweetness of his voice. "To some it would seem to come as easy as breathing, and to some wringin' the last drop of their hearts' blood couldn't force them. I'm not the man that goes into a scheme like that with the blindfold over my eyes, for you see it makes to break trust with the boss, and I've served him faithful as I knew. You'll have to be thinkin' the thing very clear to me understanding."

Women Ahead.

As women, we should not quarrel with our horizon, nor should we shrewishly arraign poor man because he has civilized us at his expense. We must realize simply that emotionally we are contours ahead of him, and that we shall have

EARTHQUAKES.

Our Queer Language.
Isn't it a queer language?

A New York policeman saw a woman in the street with a carpet and a stick.

"Beat it," he harshly commanded.

Whereupon, the woman struck the carpet with the stick and the policeman arrested her for violating a street ordinance.

The judge heard the woman's story and smiled.

"Beat it," he said to her, and this time she understood and hurried away.

Cruel Papa.
"Papa says if I give up my singing lessons he will present me with a pair of diamond earrings."

"You have never worn earrings, have you?"

"No; I should have to have my ears pierced."

"Ah, yes! I see his idea. He wants to pay you back in your own coin."—Western Christian Advocate.

Wedding Gift.
Husband of To-Morrow (reviewing wedding presents)—That awful crust seems familiar.

Wife of To-Morrow—Yes, dear, you save it at the browns. They got it as a wedding present, and gave it to the Smiths at theirs. It's the Smiths' present. But never mind, dear, Harry's wedding comes off soon!—London Opinion.

The Degree Wanted.
Doctor—Of course, the worst may happen and your uncle die. But let us hope for the best.

Expectant Father—You may, doctor, but I prefer to hope for the worst.

The Joker—This earth is becoming very unbothered.

The Serious One—What makes you think that?

The Joker—Look at the eruptions that have broken out all over her face lately.

THE USUAL FLAT.

Prospective Tenant—There is hardy room in this room for a bedstead. Janitor—I know; you'll have to paint your furniture on the wall.

An Explanation.

Visitor—How old are you, my poor fellow?

Prisoner—Fifty.

Visitor (thoughtfully)—Didn't you say 45 at the trial?

Prisoner—Yes; but the judge gave me five years.—Puck.

Why They Give It.
Some people are always giving good advice because they have no use for it themselves.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Dec. 28, 1871. The thermometer indicated two degrees below zero at seven o'clock this morning, and fifteen above at two o'clock in the afternoon.

A pleasant party assembled at the home of William A. Lawrence last evening.

The mercury was down to fourteen degrees below zero at twelve o'clock last night.

Alderman Eldridge, rake in hand, superintended the removal of the loose stones from Main street this afternoon. It is an improvement worthy of a vote of thanks.

Between seven and twelve o'clock this forenoon the barn of N. L. Hayden of Milton, caught fire and was entirely consumed. By the efforts of the college students and the citizens of Milton, the house, which was in close proximity to the barn, was saved.

Smoking meat in the barn caused the blaze.

Prof. Titcomb has resigned his post as organist at the Baptist church and his place will be filled by Prof. Jones of the Blind Institute. There will also be some changes in the choir. W. R. Follemane taking the tenor and Miss Ella Dunin, soprano.

Alderman Blount presented a petition to the common council last night from the residents of the Fourth Ward asking for the construction of a platform at the foot of Lincoln street, and a tank for the use of the fire department in the case of fire in that neighborhood. On motion of Alderman Bates this petition was referred to the fire department committee.

The report of the board of education for the month of November was presented, ordered placed on file and printed in the Gazette and Times.

This country holds the murder record, may hold it to the end of time; the nation's history is checkered with everything in deadly crime. Our murderers are all acquitted if they have money by the peck; and if it's a humpen house it fitted

MURDER RECORD about some shyster's swain-like neck upon the gallows where the sawyers have left a hole for him to drop, it means he couldn't hire the lawyers who had known how to stuff and yawp. A man may spend long years in prison for forging a five dollar check; the lowly bigamist gets hatched, the forger gets it in the neck. The cops pursue the idle vagrant and sink him on his funnypot; and in the jailyard, large and fragrant, you see the plain drunk breaking stone. But he who shoots his fellow creature, and sends him to the great beyond, becomes the daily's scare head future, is hanged, while out on hand. His trial is like an entertainment; he's freed, when lawyers come to rage; he never know what fear or strain meant, and now he elevates the stage.

THE HIRED GIRL.
By Howard L. Rapp.

The hired girl is a household necessity which is no longer viewed in a light and trifling manner. In the old days there were so many hired girls on the market that householders had to show them off the front porch, but now they are getting harder to find than eggs which can pass the candle test.

Nobody who is not heavily insured speaks of a domestic servant as a hired girl any more. They are now called maids, which is considerably more soothing and distasteful. The difference between a hired girl and a maid is about $1 a week.

The hired girl eats at the second table an entertainee her gentleman friend on the back porch, while the maid has the first helping to soup and fills the parlor with racy music. This is the reason why there are so few hired girls. The modern maid has such a large and arid repertoire of tailored gowns and chocolate hair that in some houses it is difficult to tell the mistress from the maid, and this has resulted in condition on the part of near-sighted husbands and a number of strenuous appeals for alimony. It is hard to wound the sensibilities of a hired girl by suggesting that the family would be due, but if you ask a maid to turn the wringer she will burn a path down to the station and clutter up the atmosphere with rumors about her family history. All of our leading maids are imported from France and during a household crisis speak with language with a good deal of unnecessary enthusiasm. Some of them never get to understand the English well enough to grasp a delicate reference to the state of the kitchen floor or a suggested change of pillow shams. The old-fashioned hired girl, who used to go ahead and do all the work for a family of nine on $2 a week, with one night a week off, has become a haunting memory.

Why is it that the average man is always willing to spend $6 worth of his time trying to get a 40-cent reduction in his gas bill?
